NICARAGUA
Pathway to Change

The vibrant landscape of Nicaragua includes breathtaking lakes and active volcanoes. Behind the beautiful scenery, however, the six million people who make up Central America’s largest country are among the poorest in the western hemisphere. Our Pathway to Change program seeks to break the cycle of generational poverty through education.

Experience a life-changing trip!
Our immersion trips involve a variety of experiences for volunteers. During a trip to Nicaragua you could work on building a house, visit with the kids in our Pathway to Change program and participate in activities with them. Experience true impact, learn about the local community and immerse yourself in a new culture.

Empower
6 nights

*Sponsor a scholar!
Would you be interested in sponsoring a child’s education? For sponsors with a selected child, we will provide a recent photograph and regular updates regarding your child’s progress in school and other major life events in your child’s family. Sponsorships are $2,000 a year and include tuition, transportation, breakfast, tutoring and more. We believe education is essential to ending the cycle of generational poverty in Nicaragua.

Education
The Pathway to Change Program in Nicaragua gives nearly 100 children from impoverished backgrounds an opportunity to experience an expanded and well-rounded education in Managua. Sponsors from the United States and Canada donate to provide tuition, books, school uniforms, transportation, special activities and family counseling. Thirty-five students have graduated from this program since its inception. Many students have gone on to pursue careers and higher education.

Health Care
The Nicaragua office hosts a medical group that provides basic medical care such as wellness checks, dental and vision for our children in the Pathway to Change program.

Housing
As part of the immersion trip experience, volunteers begin construction on a concrete block house. Hand in Hand believes housing is a basic need that must be met in order to ensure and encourage further success and sustainability for our community members.

Immersion
Participants stay in a Hand in Hand guest house. Three meals a day are provided, along with building materials/tools needed for the home build.
